

Technical Standards Sign-off

I realize that the following technical standards are a description of the physical demands and sensory requirements, needed for professionals, who will work in the field of radiology. Because part of the training for the sonography program requires me to participate in clinical education in a manner that will enable me to assume the duties of an entry level technologist upon graduation, I must meet the technical standards of the program.

The Technical Standards are as follows:

- Extremely heavy physical effort: lift/carry over 50 lbs*
- Prolonged, extensive or considerable standing/walking*
- Maintains upright position, over a prolonged period of time, without external support*
- Very good balance*
- Excellent control of voluntary muscle movements*
- Lifts, positions, pushes and/or transfers patient.*
- Lifts equipment/supplies*
- Pushes/pulls, moves/lifts heavy equipment/supplies*
- Safely and effectively assists wheelchair and litter patients*
- Transports patients in wheelchairs and litters*
- Considerable reaching, stooping, bending, kneeling, crouching*
- Hearing sensitivity bilaterally within normal limits (0-24.db HL); aided/non-aided and/or speech discrimination within functional limits for telephone and personal communication*
- Visual acuity of 20/60 in at least one eye with or without correction*
- Color perception is a necessity to perform job*
- Ability to "effectively" communicate the English language, requiring very good to excellent verbal communication skills*
- Good written communication skills.*

I have reviewed the above standards and agree that I am capable of meeting these requirements. My signature confirms this to be a true statement.
